

Anna Mae Green

September 20, 1940 - June 24, 2019

Anna Mae Green, daughter of Thessalona Andrews and Emily Andrews, was born on September 20, 1940 in Baltimore Maryland.

She completed her education at Dunbar High School. Also, she worked many jobs until she found her niche at the Agency Service Inc. which is a finance company from which she retired.

On Feb. 1961 she married the love of her life Eldridge (Curtis) Green and from that union came Eldridge Green, Nathan A. Green, Wendell Green and Anna K. Green. She has thirteen grandchildren and fourteen great-grandchildren. Also, she has eight living brothers and sisters and one deceased brother. She has nieces, nephews and a host of cousins.

Even though she spoke her mind, she had a heart of gold and would help anyone out if she was able. She has a heart of gold and would help anyone out if she was able. She has opened her doors to anyone in need. Here's a little joke I remember when we moved on The Alameda. My father said to her "Look no one night guest that doesn't leave for months at a time."

She loved to bowl, play cards, and gamble, but she was a football fanatic and later in life she began to love basketball especially the Golden State Warriors. She will be dearly missed by us all. She was a special woman so special that she began to tell me, her only daughter, that I have a sister, well I was confused until I met her, Rona Manning a young lady who worked on her job and I have called her my sister ever since she told me this.
