“ Anthony was a simple Brooklyn Boy who worked in the Warehouse when we first met. He was smart, funny and the most sincere young man you could ever meet. Even while working, he always took an interest in learning about those who worked around him. Anthony always had an intuition to when anyone was having a bad day, only to talk through it and help realize that all was much better than it seemed. He was truly devoted to his family and beamed that proud dad smile when he thought of his children. He was always looking for ways to brag about his wife and looked for ways to continue making her smile. The loss of this young man is acute to all that have ever engaged but we can all feel blessed for knowing him--even for the short time.

“ My wife and I send our condolences to the family
My name is Smokey I'm a PittMaster, and a coworker of Anthony, what a great person, from the day we met I've enjoyed being in his presents
I make this smoked chicken salad and he love it like crazy he would ask me when he saw me and would say hey Smokey you got any chicken salad today, it was so funny to hear him ask me for the smoked chicken salad and if I said no then he would say what kind of BBQ man are you ,when I did bring it I would watch him eat some of it and ask him what you think man, he would just look up at smile and keep eating it, that told me he was satisfied
I'll miss his famous question, and smile, hey Smokey you got any chicken salad
I guess I'll have to make some to take to haven when it's my time , you'll be missed my brother
Love you man
Smokey aka Darryl
