

Perris Wilson Moore

June 26, 1963 - December 18, 2019

Parris W. Moore, son of the late Jane and Charles Moore who was born June 26th 1963 in Frederick Maryland he received his education at Johnston Square Middle School, Dunbar High also attending Trade school to master his skills in Home Improvement, Bricklaying and Construction.

To say that Perris had numerous friends would be an understatement to just how well known and loved he was. He had such a captivating personality, that anyone who seen him would gravitate towards him and love him and those who didn't, "Keep it Movin". From his notable phrases "keep getting up", diligent work ethic sense of humor and his honesty and forthright ability to be honest about any and everything. was one of the many attributes about him had, that very few people could handle.

"Jack of all Trades, master of none" is one quote that would best describe Parris's innate ability for learning, which was admired, while most people read books he was more hands on, knowing that to get things done being stagnant was not the way to go, especially if you have a family. Because as being a man you have to provide and make a way is something that he instilled in his children. He had a love for many things but his fishing skills, attentiveness to detail, creating model car, storytelling, modesty, passion for music and his willingness and ability to be autodidact, were some of the few traits that Perris had.

To say the least Perris was a hustler and always had money in his pocket working came naturally to him because as begin a man your job was to provide and being a family man, he took that to heart. From the many friendships that he created spanning from his youth up until his passing, some would say, he is the most interesting man in the world, but to us he is the most intelligent, thoughtful, loyal, loving, humble and exciting person. One thing's for sure two things for certain God makes no mistake about putting people in our life, I just hope that you see why God had blessed you to receive Parris in yours.

Perris is survived by his wife Donna one brother Chester, children Vasshon, Steven, Sidney, Bruce, Tinisha and Dericka; granddaughters, Diamond, Tylenna, Nilha, Zen and Zia, Brother-in-law Jerry, Sister-in-law Beverly, Daughter-in-law Shakida and a host of aunts, uncles, nephews, niece's cousins and friends that he loved very much.
