

Trevor Smith

September 8, 1965 - December 9, 2019

Trevor Camille Smith, aka "Pebbles", 54, transitioned from this earth on Monday, December 9, 2019, surrounded by family at Samaritan Healthcare in Mt. Holly, New Jersey after a brief illness.

Trevor was born on September 8, 1965 in Baltimore, Maryland to the late William and Lavenia Gardner. She matriculated through the Baltimore City Public School System. She continued her education at Dundalk Community College receiving an Associates Degree in Chemical Dependency Counseling; received her Bachelor's Degree in Applied Psychology at Coppin State University and her Masters Degree in Human Services at Lincoln University. Her thesis, A Strategic Intervention To Reach Homeless Substance Abusers In Baltimore City, was foretelling of how she would spend her entire career - trying to provide resource information to those who lacked knowledge of available resources in Baltimore City.

"Trevorthewriter," authored her first novel "Innocent Ignorance: Ignoring The Truth. Living The Lie," a fictional tale of sex, drugs, and lies in "the hood" and was in the process of writing the sequel before she became ill.

Although, Trevor referred to herself as spiritual and not religious, she had a very intimate relationship with God and became a member of One God, One Thought and visited the church for services. Trevor, was an influential force in the lives of many who lived a life of redemption. For 34 years, Trevor's goal was simply to "make it to midnight," it was her anthem. During her journey she was very instrumental in sharing her life experiences, strengths and hopes, and helping others experience a new way of life. She worked in the Human Services field in roles assisting others to overcome homelessness, drug addiction and advocating for those with life threatening illnesses. Professionally, she was passionate and committed to helping anyone in need.

Trevor was a friend to many and did not use the word loosely. She cherished the relationships that she had with her very special and best friends Sherryl Figgs and Shadawn Boyd. She had a special commitment to guide others, a relationship and responsibility that she didn't take lightly.

When Trevor became ill, she created a safe-space for her friends and supporters to follow her journey. She named her supporters "Demon Slayers." Demon Slayers, prayed, left encouraging messages, posted pictures and memories, extending love and support until the very end. Trevor would enthusiastically call "Demon Slayers Stand Up!" - and they did!"

She is preceded in death by her parents, brothers Nathaniel Earl Smith and Alton Cornelius Smith, and Sister Alice Faye Smith.

She leaves to mourn, her sister E. Vann Jones (James), brother Tracy L. Smith; nephews - Dana O. Crockett (Lakia), Emanuel Simms III, and Eric Butler (Shana); nieces - Ciara D. Smith and Aisha Smith; great nieces - Michaela J. Simms, Noelle Crockett, Lauren Butler, Keyera Butler and Brianna Butler, London Russell and; great nephews - Jazae Jackson, Justin Smith, Israel Crockett, Jamal Butler, and Eric Butler Jr. and Warren Butler. Special friends, Shirrel "Figgs" Figgs and Shadawn 'DJLoveGoddess" Boyd, many other relatives, hundreds of friends and associates, and we can't forget the love of her life, Musafa Iam Smith, well known as The Mandog.
