“ Annie Goodson and I had the opportunity to be public servants in the District of Columbia Government. She was a woman with integrity, strong faith and was solution oriented. I admired her strength as an administrator and learned to be calm in situations of challenge. There is an African Proverb that says when an older woman dies, it is like a library burning to the ground. Annie was definitely a library and she helped to shape so many of us who had the opportunity to serve with her. May her soul rest in power and may her family have countless fond memories of the opportunity to be in her presence.

“ My family and I have been acquainted with Ms. Goodson for approximately 36 years. Both she and Mr. Goodson were wonderful neighbors. Ms. Goodson had a very quiet demeanor. Andre, please accept our deepest sympathy.
