“ A Poetic Phrase for My Pal (Chuck)

" Pertinacious Blackness Personified "

*Oh how beautiful, Oh how beautiful it tis to find someone whose willing to run
Run this race and run it swell, live the story, tell the story, portray it so strong, so real, so vivid. so well Creating divine Nubianism without using pen or paint - but truly telling it like it is while telling it like it ain't all with class and pride*

*Oh you "Bold Brother" of blackness, solid prince of soul, pure soldier of truth,
like the acute jungle African Zula warrior, blessed with talent, knowledge, and skill oh how great is God's will, blessed are the ones that does what you do and the winner is (" You")*

“ Dearest Morrison Family ”

Mere words can't even begin to express my deep respect and admiration for my friend "Chuck" from the 1st day I met him on the campus of Bishop College in Dallas Texas in the early 1960s: I instantly knew it was something special about him and during the following years I was blessed to experience that very special relationship, his love of life family, friends & hope for the future, but most of all, our dual love of sports & good clean competition, he was an avid sports fan, extremely wise, aware, involved in all facets of the game, and man believe me when I tell you we saw it all, 1st hand, together, if you or your team was good, we saw you play, from coast to coast, thanks to you Chuck for all the great & cherished memories.

Your Pals,

*(Jack) & Baldy

“ Our deepest sympathy to the entire Morrison family; from your Atlanta family. Chuck is not only an everlasting friend, he was always there when we needed him the most. When I was forced into retirement a week before my son graduated from high school; Chuck came to his graduation, adopted him as a God son, took him to Southern University and got him a Presidential Scholarship. He encouraged him to get a MBA and visited him in Dallas, TX when he achieved that goal. The day before my son was offered a job with IBM, he ran into Chuck in Chicago. He is truly a "God Father".

With Much Love;

Cathy, Chase and Butch
