Remembering Dolly

Gladys Victoria Millard, a retired federal government employee, passed away February 25, 2011 at the age of 87.

Affectionately called "Dolly" by family and friends, Gladys was the baby girl of William Geoffrey and Emma Hughes. She was born in Washington, DC on June 8, 1923. She graduated from Armstrong High School, and became a devoted Armstrong Alumni.

After graduation, Gladys went to work as a Nurse's Aide during World War II until 1945. Later that year, she began her career in the Government Printing Office as a Congressional Specialist Librarian and retired in 1979.

Wanting to stay busy, Gladys went back to work at Fannie Mae where and retired again in 1983.

As a part of St. Martin's Travelers Club, she was able to share her love for travel with others. She was also a member of the Ladies of Charity and Sodality, and served as a Head Usher at St. Martin's.

Gladys is survived by two daughters, Helen F. Allen of Washington, DC and Theresa M. Roy of Prince George's County, MD; five grandchildren, several great grandchildren, one great-great grand; one sister, Kolasa Fuller (92 years old) of North Carolina, a host of nieces and nephews, other loving relatives, her church family and friends.

Gladys never let anyone or anything get her down, even during her lengthy illness. It was her faith that always pulled her through. Her favorite saying was, "I will do all I can do and God will do what I can't, for to do your best is all that God requires."
