“ I met Jazz at High Point High School, that’s where we became friends. They use to think we’re sisters lol. I love chilling with her. She make me laugh and happy, she was the light. I would never know if she’s feeling down until we talk about what’s going on because she’s always full of life. Love when she use to come to my family crib in Langley Park and we use to go over to Liquidators Store, the one they use to had back then in langley park and buy snacks to have sleep over. My grandpa used to take us to wheaten mall with him cause he needed a suit for church. We did a lot of fun things. We grew up having man, making babies lol and we drifted apart a little bit but you was there for me when I need some help with my son. We both have boys and 4 months ago i birth a boy again and I was supposed to hit you up to come over to the crib or go chill somewhere with our boys but it slipped my mind, then to hear that you’re gone I couldn’t believe this. I wish I did contact you when I said I was gonna to contact you because my mind be thinking about a million things. I’m happy I got to know you and to be your friend. I love you and I’ll miss you. Until we meet again, continue to rest in peace sis. 💔🕊️😊🌸

“ When I first met Jasmine she was pregnant with AJ. She was so sweet and vibrant. AJ was born the day before my birthday so I was really happy for her! Jasmine never missed my kids birthday parties, and was always there to listen and have fun. Im gonna miss our go-go turn ups and last minute link ups. You will always have a special place in my heart Chyna. To her family you guys are forever in my prayers

“ The first time I met Jasmine she hardly said 10 words. Doesn't that sound strange! Lol We were both preppers. It was her first time meeting the village and we could be a lot.

Fast forward passed many conversations and good times and I ended going into labor the night of AJs baby shower. 2 weeks later AJ was born and we were bonded in motherhood. ❤️

We had more in common than kids. Jasmine was my soca loving, party partner. Always down for a good time. Miami carnival, Silver Spring, sound clash, back yard, road!! I knew I was with someone who had my back and who saw everything going on. She was fun and smart!

Im going to miss my girl. Its hard to believe that she is gone. I will be in Miami for carnival the day of her service. She was supposed to be with me. I carry her spirit with me to share good times in memory of her.

To her family and friends. I know Jasmine had a special and unique relationship with each of you. She could get along with anyone and fit in anywhere. We share something special having shared her life. Much love to you all!
