“ *To the Sims family. I loved your mother very much in the short time that I knew her. She was a beautiful mother and person. I will never forget her smile and the conversations that we had. I think GOD for the opportunity to have allowed her to come into my life.

“ To my family: We send our condolences to you, but also know that we will never forget what Jessie Lee have done for our family. She was the #1 baby sitter. I know because she took care of Robert. We are very grateful for that. She was the best! So today, I salute a Mother that was kind and loving to us all. From all of us, we say, "You've given so deeply, so often, so much. So many respond to your comfort, your touch. You've offered compassion again and again...What a shining example of love you have been." Rest In Peace with Jesus. We will miss you,

Love,

Barbara, Zeke, Robert, LaJuan

“ I love you Mrs. Sims and will never forget how you cared for my babies LaNise and Gerald Coleman when they couldn't take care of themselves. I know Gerald was a hand full, but you kept him on point and that's why he turned out to be the man he is today. A good firm belt always does wonders. My prayers are with the family in your time of need. GOD Bless you all.###imported-begin###Gracie Coleman###imported-end##

“ Mrs. Sims was indeed a "Grand" mother. She mothered two families: the one she birthed and the community she would graciously open her home and heart to. A visit with Mrs. Sims may include a meal, friendly conversation, gifts of fruit from the market, and/or a recipe tip. It's hard not to sound cliché when saluting such a kind and giving spirit, but she will undoubtedly be missed, forever remembered and rarely imitated. Much appreciation and extensions of my love are in order, first to the virtuous Mrs. Sims, and then to her extension, the rest of the Sims family. Prayers of Peace and emotional resolve to you all.##imported-begin##Ayesha##imported-end##
