“ *Hey mama things are getting better for but I still find myself lost and missing you everyday, I am blessed everytime I wake up to see another day, but each day still feels incomplete with you here in the flesh. I have been working to keep my mind a float and running but I sit here with my anxiety level high and my eyes are burning for all the years that I have cried about and daddy not being here. So much have happened and I had to find away to get through this pain. People always have the wrong things to say and never know I am feeling. I feel you around when ever. When I am up and can't sleep then I talk to and know that you are there to here me. On lady told me a few years ago but that I will get pass anything that I am going through but that bus not true at all I never got over me losing my mother and father. I love you Mama and Papa I remember when someone had tried to put me in position to choose one of you but I can't because I will forever love you both. Will shall meet gain mama Love you both.
