“Marilyn was such a dear and delightful colleague and an incredibly gifted teacher. One morning she called me into her room as I was walking down the hall to tell me she had narrowly avoided a calamity! She always kept a tube of lip gloss in her desk drawer and applied some each morning after preparing her classroom for the day. On this particular day, she had actually picked up a glue stick that was right beside the lip gloss and was ready to apply it when she realized she was holding the wrong thing! We both fell out laughing. I will remember her laughing and sharing with me always.
