“ I love you, Sis. I just love you.

During our last conversation, we talked about going to one of your favorite places — The Cheesecake Factory — to celebrate. We never got that chance, and that weighs heavy on my heart.

My heart hurts, but I know you're more than fine. You're free. You're whole. You're surrounded by peace and light, and that light will forever be with me.

I'll carry your laughter, your wisdom, and your spirit with me always. You were more than a sister — you were my confidante, my cheerleader, my mirror. You saw me when I couldn't see myself.

I'll never forget the “blue shoes.” Pam, where are my shoes? That memory still makes me smile through the tears.

You left a mark on everyone you met, and I'm so proud to be your sister. I'll keep your legacy alive in the way I love, the way I speak up, and the way I celebrate life — just like you taught me. Your little Sis, Tavia
