“ The Cardozo band filled that void in my life. I had no sisters or brothers so I turn to the band to fill the void in my life. He taught me how to play the French horn, trumpet and xylophone. I loved to be in the parade the Apple blossom parade, the cherry blossom parade Mr. Gill went back to school to get his masters degree so he could continue to teach at Cardozo high school today. I am getting ready to drop an album and the skills I learned in the band help me so much. I remember playing a song and Mr Gill stop the song to shout out to me and say play that French horn. I Learned a whole lot from Mr. Gill rest in peace

“ Mr. Robert Gill was one of the capstone's of the District of Columbia Public School System. Mr. Gill was anointed to take a lump of coal and mold it into a diamond. That's what Mr. Gill did with many of the members of the Cardozo High School Marching Band. There was no such thing as an at risk kid with Mr. Gill. Mr. Gill viewed all students as winners with all the potential God gave them. God bless you Mr. Gill for allowing yourself to be used by God. Now you are one of the directors of that glorious stage band in the heavenly realm. To God be the Glory, Dominion, and Power; Forever - Amen.

“ My deepest condolences to the Gill family. Mr. Gill was my manager at Youth Employment Service Program for 5 years. He had a kind, helpful and supportive spirit. In fact, Robert guided our team in helping hundreds of youth to secure a job. He was a Beacon of Light in the community who will be truly missed.

“Mr. Gill, may I join the band?” Yes was his answer. Now he has said yes to Mr. Gill. I thank God for your mentorship, life skills learned, your persuasive showmanship, and learning to play spades in the band room. 😊

“ Mr. Gill was an amazing teacher, band director, mentor and father figure to many of us at Cardozo HS. The band was like a family. We studied, practiced, traveled, performed and just had fun together. Mr. Gill taught us how to lead and be a part of a team. Truly a teacher who made an everlasting impact on our lives. Mr. Gill, you will be greatly missed. Shirley Witherspoon-Ford, Class '74
