“ A flood of Memories drown out words. Memories of Bryant when he was a little boy running around getting in trouble and preaching to the steps in his home. Memories when he became a young man exploring life. Memories of him as a newlywed teamed with Doretha making a new life together. Memories of him being a father to BJ and Mellanie. But most of all I remember him not only as a cousin but also as a friend. Rest in peace and we will meet again. Greg Jackson

Bryant..... Take your rest. May you have lived your life so that in that grate and glorious day when the first trump sound that you will be caught up to meet our Lord in the sky. To the rest of our family..... Let us be sure to be ready as well. Life is short and today is not promised. So i bid you well and if time and distance keep us apart and i donot have the opportunity to see you again.... Look for me on the sea of glass. Where death has no more victory where time will be no more and where we will all forever be the Lord. I hope to see you there. Love you all. Keep us in prayer. Kenny
